DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 42-58 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Park (US 20020130830 A1).

As per claim 42, Park shows a liquid crystal display with panel (In Fig.1 and section 0023); a backlight (element 120 in fig.1); wherein the back light repeats lighting and extinguishing a backlight such that a lighting period is shorter (luminance controller 280 in fig.6 if an image signal required a high or low luminance level) for a motion picture image with a fast movement than for a motion picture image with a slow movement (in claim 1). Park does not show specifically a shorter period for a motion image with a fast movement than with a slow image. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time of the invention was made to have a timing controller as taught by Park's for receiving an image signal and based on the signal to decide if the image signal is required more intensity of less according to moving or still image (on page 5 and 6) to decide to have a longer or shorter period for luminance for a device in order to reduced power consumption.

As per claims 43,52 Park shows movement degree detection circuit (element 278 In Fig.1).

Art Unit: 2673

As per claim 44, Park shows signal information for classifying for fast and slow movement state (In section 0077, 0078, 0079).

As per claims 45,53 Park shows classifying for still picture and motion picture (In section 0096).

As per claims 46,47,54,55 Park shows period is shorter for backlight increased (timing controller could have programmed to do this function to have shorter or longer period according to image signal).

As per claim 48,56 Park shows lighting time period is changed based on the image movement (In Fig.2, 7).

As per claims 49,57 Park shows using scanning line to lighting and extinguishing (In section 0036,0037 using R, G, B signal scanning line).

As per claim 50, Park shows LCD display panel with different type of field with vertical and longitudinal field type (In section 0023 and 0025).

As per claims 50,58 Park does not specifically teach lighting for a still picture image and repeats lighting and extinguishing for a motion picture image. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time of the invention was made to have a timing controller taught by Park to have programmed or controlled such way to determined if a backlight needs to more light or less light according to image signal based on a moving or still picture image signal and to repeat more lighting and extinguishing for a moving to preserved power saving in a display device.

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 42-58 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

4. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
